

English Anglo-Normans

You can revive your king or queen pawn at any time. (excluding the attached card) When doing so, you lose 2 Capital lifepoints.

Watchman

STARTING SCOUT

1 1

2 INFANTRY

1 Action: Replace a surrounding camp of yours with a barracks.

4

0 In 13th-century England, strict curfews gave rise to the Night Watch. Under the 'Nightwalker' statutes, they patrolled the streets, arresting anyone found after sunset and holding them until dawn. III

Billman

1 1 1

2 INFANTRY

2 Melee Armor 1 (Takes 1 less damage from Melee attacks.)

4

0 A bill was an agricultural tool used for trimming trees, later adapted into a weapon by adding spikes. While much of Europe adopted the pike, the English kept the bill as their primary polearm. III

Billman

1 1 1

2 INFANTRY

2 Melee Armor 1 (Takes 1 less damage from Melee attacks.)

4

0 A bill was an agricultural tool used for trimming trees, later adapted into a weapon by adding spikes. While much of Europe adopted the pike, the English kept the bill as their primary polearm. III

Billman

1 1 1

2 INFANTRY

2 Melee Armor 1 (Takes 1 less damage from Melee attacks.)

4

0 A bill was an agricultural tool used for trimming trees, later adapted into a weapon by adding spikes. While much of Europe adopted the pike, the English kept the bill as their primary polearm. III

Welsh Infantry

2 1

2 INFANTRY - ARCHER

3

3

2 Welsh infantry became a vital pillar of the English army. Primarily recruited as spearmen and foot-archers, thousands of these skilled warriors were drafted to fight the king's wars in Scotland and France. III

Welsh Infantry

2 1

2 INFANTRY - ARCHER

3

3

2 Welsh infantry became a vital pillar of the English army. Primarily recruited as spearmen and foot-archers, thousands of these skilled warriors were drafted to fight the king's wars in Scotland and France. III

Longbowman

2 2

2 ARCHER

0

2 Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1 .)

3 Longbows were a common weapon throughout history, most famously the yew longbows. Made from one piece of wood, they were quick and easy to craft. III

Longbowman

2 2

2 ARCHER

0

2 Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1 .)

3 Longbows were a common weapon throughout history, most famously the yew longbows. Made from one piece of wood, they were quick and easy to craft. III

2

2

2

2

2

ARCHER

0

2

3

Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1.)

Longbows were a common weapon throughout history, most famously the yew longbows. Made from one piece of wood, they were quick and easy to craft.

3

2

1

2

2

ARCHER

0

3

3

Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1.)
Ignore other unit's Armor effects.

Yeomen were middle-ranking free men, often associated with English and Welsh longbowmen. Their bows had immense power, capable of piercing armor.

3

2

1

2

2

ARCHER

0

3

3

Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1.)
Ignore other unit's Armor effects.

Yeomen were middle-ranking free men, often associated with English and Welsh longbowmen. Their bows had immense power, capable of piercing armor.

3

2

2

3

3

ARCHER - CAVALRY

3

3

3

Long-Range (Attack from 2 squares away with Ranged attack, dealing -1.)

Some archers could afford a horse and better equipment. Mounted archers usually dismounted to shoot, but used their horses to reposition or join a charge.

2

1

2

2

CAVALRY

2

5

0

Charge 2 (+2 against units after moving 2 or more squares this turn.)

Esquire was a title of respect for men of higher social rank. They were employed by nobles of higher rank, such as knights.

3

4

2

2

CAVALRY

4

7

0

Charge 2 (+2 against units after moving 2 or more squares this turn.)
Armor 2 (Take 2 less damage during combat.)

Knighthood was considered a rank of minor nobility. A knight was often a vassal who served as an elite warrior or bodyguard to a lord in return for payment.

3

3

2

2

2

INFANTRY

3

6

1

Recruit (Action: Draw 1 card.)
When this unit is on a camp of yours, this unit has +3 and Armor 3.

A reeve responsible for managing a shire, also known as a shire reeve. The duties of a shire reeve included keeping the peace, providing men at arms and collecting taxes.

3

4

1

2

2

CAVALRY

3

10

0

If this unit is deployed onto the King or Queen, you lose 2 lifepoints, but this unit and all surrounding units of yours, have +2.
If not deployed onto the King or Queen, all surrounding units of yours have Armor 1.

An earl was a high-ranking noble who governed a specific territory. During the Barons' Wars, some revolted against the crown to challenge the king's power.

2

1

1

1

1

SIEGE - CATAPULT

0

2

1

Action: Deal 3 true damage to an enemy building up to 2 squares away from this unit.
Ranged Armor 2 (Takes 2 less damage from Ranged attacks.)

The counterweight trebuchet was the ultimate siege engine starting in the 13th century, until gunpowder rendered it obsolete in the late 15th century.

Trebuchet

2
1
1

1

SIEGE - CATAPULT

Action: Deal 3 true damage to an enemy building up to 2 squares away from this unit.

Ranged Armor 2 (Takes 2 less damage from Ranged attacks.)

The counterweight trebuchet was the ultimate siege engine starting in the 13th century, until gunpowder rendered it obsolete in the late 15th century.

Warwolf

4
3
1

1

SIEGE - CATAPULT

One-time action: Deal 7 true damage to an enemy building up to 2 squares away from this unit.

Ranged Armor 2 (Takes 2 less damage from Ranged attacks.)

War Cry 2 (All surrounding allied units have +2.)

The largest trebuchet known, the War Wolf, required 30 wagons to transport. It was built for the siege of Stirling Castle, but the Scots surrendered before it could be used.

Edward I Longshanks

4
5

2

CONQUEROR - CAVALRY

At the end of your turn, gain 1 temporary wild resource. (max. 2) For each wild resource on Edward, all your units have +1 Armor. At the end of your turn, if Edward has 2 wild resources, you lose 2 lifepoints.

Standing at an imposing 6'2", Edward I was known as 'Longshanks.' He restored royal authority through relentless wars, leaving a legacy both feared and admired.

Arrowslits

1
1

UPGRADE Archer

+1 When on a building of yours.

Forgotten for centuries, the arrowslit was a defensive masterpiece. Originally used by Greeks and Romans, it was reintroduced in 12th-century England, turning castle walls into sniper nests.

Arrowslits

1
1

UPGRADE Archer

+1 When on a building of yours.

Forgotten for centuries, the arrowslit was a defensive masterpiece. Originally used by Greeks and Romans, it was reintroduced in 12th-century England, turning castle walls into sniper nests.

Marcher Lord

1
1

UPGRADE

After attacking with this unit, it can still build in the same turn.

Marcher Lords guarded the Welsh Marches, the border between England and Wales. These nobles held unique powers to build castles and wage war.

Royal Forest

ACTION

Destroy camps of yours on forest squares. For each camp you destroy, you gain 2 temporary food resources.

ACTION

Gain 1 temporary Wood resource

Royal forests were hunting grounds reserved for the aristocracy. Hunting or cutting wood was forbidden. Nobles could pay for limited rights to hunt or cut wood.

Royal Forest

ACTION

Destroy camps of yours on forest squares. For each camp you destroy, you gain 2 temporary food resources.

ACTION

Gain 1 temporary Wood resource

Royal forests were hunting grounds reserved for the aristocracy. Hunting or cutting wood was forbidden. Nobles could pay for limited rights to hunt or cut wood.

Pontoon Bridge

ACTION

Relocate any amount of units of yours surrounding water, to another square surrounding the water square. Each unit after the first takes 1 damage.

Floating bridges were vital but risky. In 1282, a bridge of boats collapsed at Moel-y-don under retreating English knights.

Pontoon Bridge

ACTION

Relocate any amount of units of yours surrounding water, to another square surrounding the water square. Each unit after the first takes 1 damage.

Floating bridges were vital but risky. In 1282, a bridge of boats collapsed at Moel-y-don under retreating English knights. III

Wool Export

ACTION

Take up to 3 temporary gold resources, for each resource you take, your opponent gets 1 temporary food resource.

Wool formed the backbone of the English economy. Prized as the finest in Europe, it primarily exported to Flanders and Italy. These exports greatly funded England's wars. III

Eyre

ACTION

For each of your Camps occupied by one of your units, you gain one temporary resource of the corresponding type.

An eyre was a circuit of royal judges sent to inspect vassals and oversee local legal cases. These visits were feared for their heavy fines, in 1233 locals reportedly fled into the woods to escape the law. I

Model Parliament

ACTION

For each of your units that costs 4 or fewer resources, draw 1 card. For each of your units that costs 5 or more resources, gain 1 temporary wild resource. If you have no units in one of these categories, lose 2 lifepoints.

The parliament of England under King Edward I. It included clergy, aristocracy and representatives from various counties. I

Ring of Iron

ACTION

Place up to two Barracks on squares adjacent to enemy buildings.

The Ring of Iron was a chain of fortifications built across Wales during the reign of Edward I. Its purpose was to control the native Welsh population and suppress uprisings. I

Hammer of the Scots

REACTION

At the first attack of your opponents turn. Your opponent either chooses to not attack anymore, giving them one temporary resource of choice, and healing all your units 1 damage. Or they attack, giving all your units +2 during your next turn.

Edward I earned the nickname 'Hammer of the Scots'. He broke the Franco-Scottish alliance and executed William Wallace, but never managed to subdue Robert the Bruce. I

Bowyers

EVENT

Archer units of yours cost 1 less wood resource to deploy and may also be deployed onto your camps.

Becoming a bow-making expert required specialised training. Bowyers had to produce thousands of bows for the military. An expert bowyer could make a longbow in as little as two hours. I

Purveyance

EVENT

Units of yours may be deployed with a reduced amount of resources of your choice. For each resource you pay less, you lose 2 lifepoints.

Purveyance allowed the crown to buy goods and horses far below market price. This practice was frequently abused by greedy officials. I

Magna Carta

EVENT

Your Royal figures (King and Queen) lose their bonus stats. While you have a Royal figure deployed, gain 1 temporary Gold at the end of your turn (max. 2). If this card reaches 2 Gold, your Royal figures take 2 damage. You may destroy this card at any time. If you do, lose 2 Capital Lifepoints, heal 4 damage to your Royal figures, and restore their bonus stats.

The Magna Carta was a charter of law forcefully signed by King John. It limited royal authority. Kings often reaffirmed it to demonstrated obedience to the law, ensuring taxes and political support. I